St. Francis-Sacramento guard Najah Queenland had narrowed down her list and committed late last week.

Talk about it in the Message Boards

We caught up with the 3-star guard at the Cal Sparks Summer Tune-up to talk about her decision.

The 5-foot-10 Queenland verbally committed to Pacific with Pepperdine and Denver on her final list. She is expected to add versatility for the Tigers, which went 27-8 last year and is transitioning into the West Coast Conference.

"I've known them for three years now and I visited them. I wanted the process to be open, but when I visited there I knew I was comfortable and knew it was close," Queenland said. "I wasn't sure yet if I wanted to go far or close yet."

Going along in the process, Queenland went to Pacific's Midnight Mania before the season and was eventually sold while on an unofficial visit in May.

Queenland is expected to add versatility to Pacific

"I went to their Midnight Mania. I really liked the environment of the team. What made me say 'wow I'm really going there' is once I got out of school in the middle of May, I took an overnight visit. I just hung out with some of the girls on the team. Just chilling in their house and watched Family Guy," Queenland said. "The next day, I walked around the school, got to know the coaches, looked around and it felt like I already knew them and felt like I already went there."

She waited to decide for about a month and visited Pepperdine before deciding on UOP. The No. 18 ranked prospect in the 2014 class is one of five players to commit from the rising senior class.

"The two (shooting guard) and three (small forward). They play a four out, one in so basically everyone does everything," Queenland said on how she will likely be used. "I feel I'm a dribble drive and I really like to pass. They really share the ball a lot."

Queenland is playing with the CA Ballaz this summer.
