August 1, 2011

The final day of the July evaluation period was a chance to check in on some of the top underclassmen talent on display before they return to their high school teams. Also see which programs fared best in the Summer in the City and adidas Grand Finale with their last chance to play in front of college coaches.

Team Concept takes the gold

In the gold bracket finals, the size of Team Concept Heat was too much to overcome as they beat EBX Black I 53-41. Team Concept jumped out to a 15-2 lead and led 30-17 at the half behind strong play inside from 2013 post prospect Mercedes Russell.

In semi-final action, EBX Black I defeated West Coast Premier Valley 51-29 and Team Concept Heat handled San Jose Cagers Blue 59-25.

In the silver bracket finals, NorCal Elite Blue fell behind Team Concept Fire 36-19 at the half before nearly completing a second half comeback. NorCal Elite eventually fell 61-52 in making a clean sweep for the Team Concept program.

Underclassmen watch

Morgan Green 5-foot-7 G Whitney (EBX Black I) 2014: Green continued his stellar summer with a good showing in the semi-final win over the West Coast Premier Valley and a loss to Team Concept Heat in the finals. Against the size of Team Concept Heat, she was able to work effectively off screens in playing the role of a distributor. She brings very good quickness to the backcourt, which is key in her ability to break down defenses. Definite prospect on the rise heading into her sophomore season.

Jasmine Hampton 5-foot-11 F Modesto Christian (EBX Future) 2014: Hampton played well in both viewings this weekend as a player to watch this coming year at Modesto Christian. She is poised in the post and works well off of her defender to get good looks. She finished with five rebounds and tracks the ball well off the rim. Hampton averaged just less than five points per game last year.

Kelli Hayes 6-foot-0 F Mitty (San Jose Cagers Blue) 2014: The continued development of Hayes was one of the main storylines this weekend. She is a very good athlete who can make plays from the perimeter in either pulling up for a mid-range jumper or taking it inside, where she can finish with contact. Hayes has improved handles, competed well on the defensive end and played with a good energy level for the three games we watched this weekend.

Aisia Robertson 5-foot-8 G Montera MS (CA Ballaz (II) 2015: A future Bishop O'Dowd guard, Roberston helped lead the CA Ballaz II to a convincing win over NorCal Elite White. Robertson is a playmaking guard who can score with her jumper and driving game and also rebounds well for her position. Still a young prospect that has yet to play a high school game, her presence on the floor along with fellow 2015 guard Asha Thomas makes this a much different team.

Mission Rec Center triumphs at Grand Finale

Mission Rec Center Blue captured the adidas Grand Finale title over host Cal Stars Elite with a 65-58 win. Ivonne Cook-Taylor had 22 points while Terilyn Moe finished with 18 points to round out the Terra Nova duo for MRC Blue. 2014 Carondelet guard Natalie Romeo finished with 20 points for Cal Stars. Strictly Hoops won the silver bracket and JBS Purple captured the bronze bracket.

The All-Tournament for the Elite Division was Cook-Taylor, Moe, Dougherty Valley forward Treyvonna Brooks and St. Mary's-Berkeley G/F Shannon Mauldin from MRC Blue and Romeo, St. Mary's-Stockton wing Courtney Range and Acalanes forward Sophie Taylor.

Cal Stars 2014s won the All-Star bracket.
